Work Search Requirements FAQs

1. What are the work search requirements to remain eligible for UI Benefits in the District of Columbia?

The Department of Employment Services (DOES) will be enhancing and enforcing strict work search compliance measures as mandated by a recent change in federal law.

After a claimant files for and is determined monetarily eligible to receive unemployment benefits, he or she must continue to make a concerted effort each week to find suitable employment while receiving benefits.

Failure to conduct a thorough work search (through seeking and applying for employment) or refusing to accept suitable work will affect your eligibility and may result in a denial of benefits.

Work search requirements for the District of Columbia are as follows:

- You MUST contact at least two (2) employers each week to inquire about job openings.
- You MUST keep a detailed written record of the employers you contact each week. This includes:
 - Date of job search.
 - Accurate contact name and phone number of the employer, if visited in person or contacted via telephone.
 - Accurate contact name and e-mail address or fax number of employer, if applied for a job via e-mail or fax.
 - Accurate web address, if applied for a job on-line.
 - A copy of your job application, if applicable.
- You MUST provide your written work search records to DOES upon request.
- You MUST be registered for employment services through your local American Job Center (AJC) at <https://www.dcnetworks.org/vosnet/Default.aspx>. Click "Not Registered?" to create your user name and password.
- Your work search MUST begin the week you file your claim.

For more information on all UI benefits eligibility requirements, please refer to your Claimant's Rights and Responsibilities Handbook.

2. Will DOES check my work search records?

Yes, DOES will verify your work search records. We may ask for evidence of your work search efforts at any time. Periodically, you may be required to report to an AJC to provide documentation of your work search efforts. You must, therefore, keep an accurate and detailed record of your weekly work search activities.

3. What happens if I cannot provide evidence of my work search activities?

If you do not have all of the details of your work search, you MUST provide an acceptable explanation as to why the information is not available.

If you cannot provide evidence of your work search activities or if an employer or other contact listed disputes or cannot verify reported information, you may be determined ineligible for benefits for the benefit week(s) in question, and your benefits could be suspended indefinitely until the records of your weekly work search activities are in compliance with these requirements.

Protect your UI benefits eligibility by keeping a detailed record of your work search. Provide as much information as possible regarding your contacts and applications.
